

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE DISTRICT OF ALASKA

PAUL CHARLES PETERS,
Plaintiff,

Case No. 4:24-cv-00021-SLG

v.

ROB JEFFORDS, et al.,
Defendants.

ORDER OF DISMISSAL & NOTICE OF STRIKE

On August 4, 2025, the Court screened the First Amended Complaint filed in this case by self-represented prisoner Paul Charles Peters (“Plaintiff”), found it deficient, but granted Plaintiff leave to file a Second Amended Complaint or a Notice of Voluntary Dismissal.¹ The Court warned Plaintiff that failure to file either document with the Court within 60 days of the Court’s Second Screening Order would result in dismissal of this case as a “strike” without further notice to Plaintiff.² To date, Plaintiff has not responded or otherwise contacted the Court.

DISCUSSION

Rule 41(b) of Federal Rules of Civil Procedure permits dismissal due to a plaintiff’s failure to prosecute or comply with a court order. In deciding whether to dismiss on this basis, a district court considers five factors: “(1) the public’s interest in expeditious resolution of litigation; (2) the court's need to manage its docket; (3) the risk of prejudice to the defendants; (4) the public policy favoring disposition of cases on their merits; and (5) the availability of less drastic sanctions.”³

Here, the first two factors—the public's interest in expeditious resolution of litigation and the Court's need to manage its docket—weigh in favor of dismissal.⁴ Plaintiff's failure to respond within the specified timeline suggests Plaintiff does not intend to litigate this action diligently.⁵ Further, a presumption of prejudice to a defendant arises when the plaintiff unreasonably delays prosecution of an action.⁶ Because Plaintiff has not offered any justifiable reason for failing to meet the Court's deadline, the third factor also favors dismissal.⁷ The fourth factor usually weighs against dismissal because public policy favors disposition on the merits.⁸ “At the same time, a case that is stalled or unreasonably delayed by a party's failure to comply with deadlines ... cannot move forward toward resolution on the merits.”⁹ The fifth factor is comprised of three subparts, which include “whether the court has considered lesser sanctions, whether it tried them, and whether it warned the [uncooperative] party about the possibility of case-dispositive sanctions.”¹⁰ The Court’s Order at Docket 9 accorded Plaintiff an opportunity to file a Second Amended Complaint and warned him of the potential dismissal of this action in the event of noncompliance.¹¹

⁴ Pagtalunan v. Galaza, 291 F.3d 639, 642 (9th Cir. 2002) (“It is incumbent upon the Court to manage its docket without being subject to routine noncompliance of litigants.”).

⁵ Morris v. Morgan Stanley & Co., 942 F.2d 648, 652 (9th Cir. 1991) (noting that a plaintiff has the burden to move toward disposition at a reasonable pace and to refrain from dilatory and evasive tactics).

Based on the foregoing, this case must be dismissed for failure to prosecute. The dismissal shall be without prejudice so as to preserve Plaintiff’s ability to seek relief.¹² The Court finds no other lesser sanction to be satisfactory or effective in this case.¹³ Because Plaintiff was a prisoner at the time this case was filed, this dismissal will count as a “strike” under § 1915(g).¹⁴

¹⁴ Harris v. Mangum, 863 F.3d 1133, 1143 (9th Cir. 2017) (holding that when a district court dismisses a complaint on the ground that it fails to state a claim but grants leave to amend, and the plaintiff then fails to file an amended complaint, the dismissal counts as a strike under § 1915(g)).

The Three Strikes Rule

The Prison Litigation Reform Act requires that a self-represented prisoner receive a “strike” when a case he has filed in federal court is dismissed “as frivolous, malicious, or fails to state a claim upon which relief may be granted[.]”¹⁵ The “three strikes” provision was “designed to filter out the bad claims and facilitate consideration of the good.”¹⁶ Once a prisoner-plaintiff has accumulated three strikes, he is prohibited from bringing any other civil rights cases in federal court without prepaying the full filing fee unless he makes “plausible allegations” that, at the time he filed the complaint, he is under imminent danger of serious physical injury, and that danger must fairly traceable to the unlawful conduct of the defendants alleged in the complaint and redressable by the Court.¹⁷ Imminent danger requires an allegation that a harm is “ready to take place” or “hanging threateningly over one's head.”¹⁸ It cannot be triggered solely by complaints of past injury or generalized fears of possible future harm.¹⁹

¹⁹ Id. at 1053 (“The exception’s use of the present tense, combined with its concern only with the initial act of ‘bring[ing]’ the lawsuit, indicates to us that the exception applies if the danger existed at the time the prisoner filed the complaint.”).

IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED:

1. This action is DISMISSED without prejudice.
2. This dismissal counts as a “strike” under 28 U.S.C. § 1915(g), which may limit Plaintiff’s ability to bring future civil rights cases in federal court.
3. All pending motions are DENIED as moot.
4. The Clerk of Court shall issue a final judgment and close this case.

DATED this 22nd day of October 2025, at Anchorage, Alaska.
